

Why Miss K Should Become Teacher of the Year

I strongly think that my teacher, Miss K, should become Teacher of the Year because of three strong reasons, they are, making work fun, letting us go out for extra sport and making homework different. These three reasons will surely make anybody think that Miss K. deserves "The Teacher of the Year award".

There is no doubt that Miss K. is a outstanding and enthusiastic teacher and deserves the Teacher of the Year award. She has all of the class interested in work and was one of the first in the school to use Google Apps for Education and has recently become a fully qualified Google Educator. Teaches around the world use her ideas in their own classrooms by looking at the blog and twitter. This is another strong reason to award Miss K. the teacher of the year award because she doesn't just teach her own class but shares her ideas with the wider world. Our class is always thankful because our teacher Miss K, almost never gives us worksheets. She even admits that worksheets are boring and a waste of time. Worksheets don't teach you much but make you revise the work that you have already learned. Our teacher makes learning fun. Out of all the teachers that I have had throughout my primary school years, Miss K. has been the teacher that has made learning the most interesting. She has ran maths lessons where were learnt about mass (liquid) by using rubber ducks. Miss K. is one of the rare teachers that make learning and work fun.

Furthermore, Miss K. is a very generous teacher that is so nice that she lets us go out for extra sport. This is a very useful thing to do at a school because it gets us out of the classroom. This extra time outside is only a reward, and being so make us work harder to gain the reward. It is also good to go outside because it keeps us happy and joyful. If we spend more time inside we get tired but if we went outside we will be refreshed and ready to learn. This makes our brains ready for work and will make us get higher results on tests and that makes Miss K. a better teacher and it shows that she has taught us what we need to know. Miss K. is a deserving choice for the teacher of the year award.

Finally, Miss K. is a very kind, considerate and generous teacher that understands the hassle and annoyance of homework. Sadly, she still gives us homework but she doesn't give us the usual homework. She gives us helpful and interesting homework. We are given no worksheets are we are so thankful that we are not given sheet after sheet of maths equations and proper punctuation! I remember in grade 4 when I happily had Miss K. for the first time after she graduated University. Unfortunately, because it was only her first year at the school she had help from the other grade 4 teacher. We were given maths worksheets and when I look back now I am so thankful that she has become and very great teacher and gives us enjoyable homework. We are given games that are educational and teaches us how to use what we learn in the classroom in writing and maths problems. And the best reason that Miss K's homework is outstanding is that she makes it reasonably easy because it is only work that she has covered in class and has taught us so well. This means we get more time to do things we enjoy which overall make us happier and makes our work at school better.

In conclusion, our teacher, Miss K., deserves the Teacher of the year award because of reasons only teachers that are deserving and highly appreciated by her students and teacher from the school and in the community. By using technology that enables her to benefit her teaching and other teachers work. Her class is happy and energetic and want to learn what she has to teach us. I truly think that our teacher Miss K. deserves the teacher of the year award.
